more than 20,000 Union and Confederate soldiers buried there.

New York was the first state to officially designate the holiday in 1873. By 1890, all the Northern states had established an official Decoration Day. Southern states, however, honored their dead on separate days, not recognizing the May 30 date until after the holiday was changed from honoring those who died fighting the Civil War to honoring Americans who died fighting in any war.

In 1971, Congress passed the National Holiday Act which, ensured a three-day weekend for federal holidays, and the observance of Memorial Day was designated for the last Monday in May. Several southern states continue to have a separate day for honoring the Confederate war dead.

You'll notice that veterans will distribute poppies prior to Memorial Day. In 1915, Moina Michael wrote a poem:

"We cherish too, the Poppy red

That grows on fields where valor led

It seems to signal to the skies

That blood of heroes never dies."

She was the first to wear a poppy on Memorial Day in honor of those who died serving our nation. She sold the poppies to friends and co-workers with the money going to benefit servicemen in need. In 1922, the VFW (Veterans of Foreign War) became the first veterans' organization to nationally sell the poppies.

Today, VFW members and American Legion Auxiliary volunteers distribute millions of the bright, red poppies in exchange for contributions to assist disabled and hospitalized veterans. The hospitalized veterans who make the flowers earn a small wage, which helps to supplement their incomes and contributes to their self-sufficiency. Donations are used exclusively to assist and support veterans and their families.

The poppy also reminds the community of the past sacrifices and continuing needs of our veterans. The poppy has become a nationally known and recognized symbol of sacrifice and is worn to honor the men and women who served and died for their country in all wars.

Additionally, these organizations join with volunteers to ensure that our flag decorates the grave of every American who died in the service of our United States.

It does not matter which town was first or what the day is called. What is important is that we have a Memorial Day — a day to reflect, remember and thank those who made the ultimate sacrifice so we can be free.

Happy Memorial Day.

The History of Memorial Day

Memorial Day, originally called Decoration Day, is a day of remembrance for those who have died in our nation's service. It was the tradition to 'decorate' the graves of those fallen in service to our country during the Civil War. Over time, it was renamed Memorial Day and the practice of decorating graves was extended to those who died in all U.S. wars.

No one is sure where Memorial Day began, as more than two dozen cities and towns claim to be the birthplace of the day, and there are many stories about how it started.

Officially, Waterloo, N.Y., was declared the birthplace by President Lyndon Johnson in May 1966. Waterloo — which had first celebrated the day on May 5, 1866 — was chosen because the town had made Memorial Day an annual, community-wide event during which businesses closed and residents decorated the graves of soldiers with flowers and flags.

However, a hymn published in 1867 by Nella Sweet carried a dedication "To The Ladies of the South who are Decorating the Graves of the Confederate Dead." It is believed that women's groups in the South were decorating the graves of fallen soldiers before the end of the Civil War.

Most believe that the honoring of the war dead was practiced in cities and towns across the nation, giving rise to a movement that resulted in an official proclamation in 1868 by Gen. John A. Logan of the Grand Army of the Republic, an organization of former sailors and soldiers. On May 5, 1868, Gen. Logan issued General Order No. 11:

"The 30th of May, 1868, is designated for the purpose of strewing with flowers, or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the late rebellion, and whose bodies now lie in almost every city, village and hamlet churchyard in the land. In this observance, no form of ceremony is prescribed, but posts and comrades will in their own way arrange such fitting services and testimonials of respect as circumstances may permit."

On that day, Gen. James Garfield made a speech at Arlington National Cemetery, followed by 5,000 participants decorating the graves of the
